

Roadmap for the Exam via Seminar

If you decide to present a seminar

1. You have to present your personal seminar (group is not an option for the exam via seminar)
 2. The seminar proposal should be approved by the Professors. Via email, share an abstract for your Seminar (max 876 words), clearly stating if it is a deep discussion of a topic covered by the course or not.
 3. Examples of possible topics for the seminar are (but not limited to):
 - a. History of the development of a released game, highlighting technical details and connections with the arguments of the course.
 - b. Specific techniques or algorithms used in the context of gaming (with or without demos).
 - c. Illustration of a scientific or technical paper regarding game-related topics.

What must be included and highlighted

1. A report (5-10 pages) or an extended PowerPoint/Google presentation (40-50 slides) describing the topic of your seminar in more detail.
 2. Add an abstract/outline section summarizing the contents of the document.
 3. Add an introduction section describing the context of your topic (i.e. what it is, definitions, its importance in the field of gaming, etc).
 4. Add any sections necessary to describe in detail your topic, adding references to external sources where necessary.
Use videos, equations, images, tables, pseudocodes or diagrams to better illustrate your points.

What about the presentation?

1. You will have 10 minutes for your presentation.
 2. You can present a maximum of 10 slides.
 3. Focus on the connection with the course.
 4. Be prepared for at least 2 questions on the program of the course and mainly related to your seminar.

How to share your seminar?

1. Send an email with your slides, the report in PDF format and any additional files that are important to share to cover the topics you will present (e.g. scientific papers, reports, tutorials, etc.). Please send the email to both Professors with the subject: [FGD 2025] + the student's ID. In the text of the email, please report your student's ID, surname, and name, plus the abstract of your seminar.
